SEPTEMBER DAYS

Sometimes the skies are blue as June,
A bird sings now and then,
And late flowers in the garden bring
The summer days again.
A butterfly with wings of white
Still makes its little round,
And on the quiet air is heard
The crickets' cheerful sound.
But other signs there are that tell
The chilling frosts are nigh,
When withered vines hang brown and sere
And wandering leaves sail by.
O happy,—when the skies are grey
And winds are out of tune—
Is he who still can hear the song
And dream the dreams of June!
—ALMA PENDEXTER HAYDEN.

Pine Tree League

Three double games on Labor Day changed the complexion of the league standing when Mechanic Falls captured a pair from Lisbon. Other teams broke even in their matches. Wilton has a firm hold on the top perch with excellent chances to finish as champions when the season closed this week. Norway and Lisbon are scrapping over fourth position. Probably Oxford will wind up in third place unless there is an upset before the week end.

Rumford 6; Norway 5

The morning game, Labor Day was in Rumford with Norway in a three-run lead until a lucky break for Rumford netted a cluster of four runs. This was enough to win and the last half of the ninth was not played.

"Skinny" Bickford pitched excellent ball for Norway and held Pat Frenche's crowd to seven blows and fanned three.

The fifth and sixth innings rally by Norway settled the argument at Mechanic Falls, Wednesday afternoon. One lone run in the seventh and ninth was the best the home outfit could produce.

Bo Lynch of Portland, who hurled for the Mechanics, played the game against ragged support.

Kendall Bickford, relief pitcher for Norway, turned in a good report and allowed but five scattered bingles.

Baseball

Woburn Team Meets Norway

The Lord's baseball team picked from the employees of the Lord Tanning Co., at Woburn, Mass., has been secured to meet the Norway team of the Pine Tree League. This game will be played at the fair grounds, Saturday, Sept. 6, at 2:30 p. m.

The outfit has won nineteen games from all the top notchers around here this year and will play a strong aggregation in Portland on Friday. A line-up of unusual excellence will take the field against Norway, as follows: "Chike" Davarenne is a former N. E. League pitcher; "Bill" Lord, is a former Harvard catcher and first baseman; Jack Lord is a former Bowdoin second baseman and is the captain; John Sheehan could have gone with either Salem or Portland in the New England League; Bob Lee was in line to make the same teams; Larry Maynihan is a former Cornets of Lynn player; Connie Howell is considered a star left fielder and one of the best in Lynn; Joe Devarenne was in line for Salem in the N. E. League and Tom Joyce is a former Cornets of Lynn star.

With this array of talent, Norway will step lively and endeavor to give the visitors a warm reception.

Country Club Carnival

Scene of Lively Gathering Saturday

Everything went off with a bang at the Norway Country Club carnival, Saturday afternoon, and evening, when a large crowd patronized the games and booths and entered into the holiday spirit.

The outdoor show was assembled on the golf grounds around the club house above Norway Lake. There were nine booths where fakirs, fortune tellers and other talent of the kind performed in the interest of getting funds for the club from midway strollers.

During the afternoon, many played golf or participated in other games, especially Beano, the popular sport. Mrs. Ruth Cummings Huston and Mrs. Rose Butts were the mysterious fortune tellers.

In the evening the grounds were brilliant with colored lights and a much larger crowd was present, the local patronage being augmented with summer guests from Norway and surrounding towns. Numerous prizes were given, including the banner prize, a new Chevrolet sedan, which was secured by Mr. Stevens, a salesman, from Nashua, N. H.

Norway-Paris band played for dancing on the wide porch, and entertained all not desiring to enjoy the lively sport. The music added considerable life to the party.

Ralph R. Butts of South Paris made a hit in his impersonation of a hobo and created no end of fun in the crowd.

This first carnival proving a success may stimulate a similar affair next season, with more games, prizes and amusements. The general committee comprised Charles F. Cummings, George F. Hill and Dr. W. N. Swett, plus a score of lively assistants.

Mellie's Dance

Goes Over With a Whoopee, Labor Day Night—Ideal Night and a Host of Friends Put It "Over the Top"

"Mellie's Benefit Dance" in the new home on the ground floor was a wonderful success despite the fact that some thought Mellie had had his day. There were two hundred and fifty tickets sold by the enthusiastic Heywood Club ladies with the help of Shepard's camp and Cedar Brook Farm Inn. The affair was sponsored by the club with Mrs. Will Young, chairman of the general committee and Mrs. Sol. Jackson, chairman of the committee on decorations, who sold twenty-six tickets herself, and disposed of more at Shepard's camps through the proprietress, Mrs. Mellie Snell.

The other members of the committee were Mrs. Stanley Thurston, chairman advertising and tickets, with Mrs. Albert Dione, assistant. Mrs. Una Jackson, chairman of refreshments, with Mrs. Reggie Dinsmore, assistant; Mrs. Inez Parker, chairman cold drinks, with Mrs. Lillian Thurston, assistant. Others serving on general committee were Mrs. Amos Noble, Miss Ruth Bradbury and Mrs. Marion Holt. All the husbands and children of the neighborhood helped gather autumn leaves and hosts of flowers as well as ruffle crepe paper streamers in autumn shades and put them up under direction of the chairman on decorations. Huge hydranga blossoms just turning pink were used in abundance, tied to the posts of the center partition over the crepe paper that hid the beams from view. Hyderanga and autumn boughs were over all doorways and windows, and the front porch was a veritable bower.

Here the orchestra from West Paris, known as Shem's Orchestra, because of the first letter from each one's name, Stone, prompter and saxaphone, were seated and furnished excellent music enjoyed by all, even the outsiders perched up on top of their autos that they might see over the tall canvasses free. Dallas Benson loaned the canvases and did many fine rope stunts to amuse the crowd in the enclosure around the new home. Refreshments of ice cream, hot dogs and apple pies were served at the other side of the porch, with cold drinks at a booth in the enclosure. Mrs. Chris Noble, Mrs. Stan Thurston, Mrs. Albert Dione, Mrs. Will Young and Mrs. Sol. Jackson put posters over town and the surrounding localities, so that crowds came and went from 7:30 to midnight.

Mellie and Gram received, and several good friends had greenbacks in their hands when they greeted the famous couple; this sum was not counted in the $130.00 clear gain that the club ladies will buy furniture with, appropriate to the little home that is to be very simple, but comfortable, with four rooms downstairs and two up. Mellie played for several contra dances and was accompanied by his granddaughter, Mrs. Cherry Frechette, who went to New York to make the Victor records with her grandfather at the time when he was on the circuit with Keith's Show.

Mellie has just recently been featured in Keith's at Portland, and is constantly in demand over the State at special occasions. He doesn't claim to be a violinist, but with his personality he is surely as popular an old fiddler as one would find in their travels. His little snowshoe camp where he steamed the shoes that Peary took to the North Pole on his successful expedition, has been housing Mellie and Gram all summer since the fire that destroyed their old homestead with all their belongings and many souvenirs and other treasures collected and saved for over half a century since their wedding day. Mellie took to the woods with his violin and correspondence from Henry Ford, these the only relics saved from the cruel flames that very nearly took their lives in the cold winter snow last year. Mellie has been most generous in giving to the limit so that the club ladies are very happy to have given him this little show of their love and esteem.

ENTERTAINED GUESTS

Louis F. Paret, who is spending the summer at his cottage at the lake, entertained a party of ten from Thursday till Tuesday. Those in the party were Bert Stowell, Roger Pennock, James W. Brown, Ralph W. Neal, William S. Kaiser, Henry J. Meyer, Edwin R. Sumner, Harry Peech and Louis F. Paret, Jr. The guests all live in and around Philadelphia, Pa., and employed by the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Philadelphia.

Thursday evening they enjoyed a clam bake at Paris Hill with E. B. Jackson as chef at Leonard Ashton's summer home. Saturday the party went to South Arm for a fishing trip and on Tuesday, Freeland Grant, general agent in Portland, joined the party at Poland Spring, where they were the guests of Leonard Ashton, where golf was enjoyed in the forenoon. They left for Swampscott, Mass., where they attended the Prominent Leaders' Convention in that city, after a delightful outing.

Olive Puliston of Rochester, N. Y., is a guest of Miss Clara Shepard at the Shepard farm.

Charles A. Richardson was stricken in a field, Sunday, and removed to his home on Paris Street. He is still confined to his bed and not much improvement has been noticed. It is believed that he had a sun stroke.

Mrs. Herbert Bradbury spent Sunday and Monday with her sister at Ocean Park, her daughter, Thelma Bradbury, who is training for a nurse at the Eye and Ear Infirmary, spent her spare time with her.

Madame Schumann-Heink, the world's best beloved prima donna, has been engaged by the manufacturers of the "Enna Jettick" shoes to sing one number on their Sunday evening program at 8 o'clock, eastern standard time, for the coming fall and winter. Sunday evening, Sept. 7, she will sing "The Rosary".

A pleasant family reunion was held Sunday, on the ledges at the Fred Noble farm, Crockett Ridge. About forty members of the family were present for picnic dinner, one of the chief features being sweet corn which was boiled on the spot. The gathering was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Hatch (Lona Noble) of Hartford, Ct., who were recently married and were in town for the week end.

Hon. and Mrs. B. G. McIntire and Glenn R. McIntire were in Massachusetts the last of the week, and attended the funeral of Miss Angie Brackett of Boston, which was held at Waltham, at the home of the daughters of John Green, formerly of North Waterford. Miss Brackett was well known in Norway as she has visited the McIntire's often.

Republican Rally

Notable Speakers in Attendance

The Republican campaign was given a boost, Friday evening, before an audience of more than 500 in Norway Opera House. Two nationally known speakers, Hon. James MacLafferty of California and Mrs. Louise Dodson of Washington, D. C., presented a clear cut outline of conditions as they are in the National capitol. Donald B. Partridge of Norway, candidate for Congress from the second Maine district, also spoke and was enthusiastically received.

Norman U. Greenlaw, chairman of the town committee, presided. Seated on the stage were Oxford County candidates, namely, Charles L. Bartlett of Norway; E. Walker Abbott, South Paris; Harry O. Stimson, South Paris; Harvey E. Powers, South Paris; Harry M. Shaw, South Paris; Stanley M. Wheeler, South Paris; Donald B. Partridge, Norway; Ernest S. Hatch, Lovell, and Harold C. Perham, South Paris. Mrs. Stephen O. Jellerson, Norway, and Mrs. L. L. Mason, South Paris, prominent members of the state and county organization, were also on the stage.

Two Oxford Bears that have done publicity work for the Partridge campaign and created some controversy in the question of the candidate's expense account, had a conspicuous place on each side of the platform.

A concert by the Norway-Paris Band opened the meeting and selections were played during the evening.

Partridge for Congress

Not Under Insull Control

The statement that Donald B. Partridge, Republican candidate for Congress or any member of the Partridge-for-Congress Club has been approached by the Power Interests, is denied by Norman U. Greenlaw, chairman of the Norway Republican Town Committee..

This was intimated in a letter written by R. L. Cummings of Paris to Judge Edgar C. Smith, Secretary of State, Norman U. Greenlaw, chairman of the Norway Republican Town Committee and prominent in the Partridge campaign, issued a statement on the accusation.

Mr. Cummings in his letter stated that, "I believe it to be a matter of common knowledge here that our candidate for Congress, Donald Partridge is an Insull candidate."

He asked Secretary of State Smith to take the necessary steps to have the report investigated.

Mr. Greenlaw, acting as the spokesman for the Partridge-for-Congress Club, says in his statement: "In connection with the request to Secretary of State, Judge Edgar C. Smith, regarding the Insull interests in the Primary Campaign of Donald B. Partridge, and recently printed in the public press, I wish to state that neither Donald B. Partridge nor any member of the Partridge-for-Congress Club has ever been approached by the Power Interests within or without the State.

"No money was ever offered to the club for campaign purposes by this so-called Power group. If there is such a group, I question if even then they had any idea that Partridge had a possible chance of becoming the successful contestant.

"The request made to Secretary of State Smith comes from a man professing that he has always been a Republican, but due to the fact that he has been and is now actively engaged in furthering the Bonney interests, prompts me to state that he is no longer a Republican.

"The sound thinking, reliable and responsible voters of neither party resort to political tactics of the Bonney nature unless they have some damaging purpose in view.

"I feel that the Republicans of Oxford County and the Republicans of the Second District are not interested in the type of press material that has been set forth by dissatisfied Republicans.

"The result next Monday will really show that the people of the Second District are of the old staunch Republican faith."

Circus Days

Downie's Circus, Some Show—Colorful, Well Balanced and Exceeded Expectations

Downie Bros. Motorized Circus appeared August 30 on the fair grounds between Norway and South Paris. Three rings in which more than two score feature acts were presented afternoon and night, kept everybody on edge. There wasn't a moment wasted during two hours the program lasted. From the short concert after the doors opened to the colorful iron jaw aerial act, the events clicked with the whistle in rapid succession without hitches. Clowns filled the interludes and no distressing confusion while changing "props" was in evidence. Comparing the present circus with past shows brought to Norway by the Downie Bros. the verdict is that Andrew Downie has built his masterpiece and a machine that functions smoothly.

Everything was clean and orderly about the outfit, with evidence of strict discipline and careful attention to the small detail. Without "snide" games and "grifters" or other offensive workers the show leaves a wholesome impression. This fact with the excellent performance under the big top, made a wholesome reaction on the public. All will be waiting for the show when it returns.

The circus travels on rubber, using seventy-five trucks, coaches, trailers and other motor vehicles. Even the ring stock, three elephants and two camels, all ride in state over highways of tarvia and concrete, so different from "mud show" days.

Early Friday evening the advanced guard arrived, that being the cook house. About 3 a. m. the long gasoline caravan rolled in from Bridgton. Tents were pitched before the morning fog disappeared, then close to high noon the street parade dazzled the populace. Mr. Downie retains the old time feature—he knows human nature and has showmanship. Kiddies in ages from ten to ninety are thrilled and dazzled by the flash of spangles or the blare of a band. The mile-long pageant was the best seen on our streets in recent years and really "got" the crowd. Three bands and a calliope; colorful floats, dens of wild animals, graceful riders, all made a street ballyhoo worthwhile.

Business on the lot opened when the Downie Bros. Annex went into action. Inside was the menagerie and curiosities. The Hawaiian dance, snake charmer, plantation show and other attractions, minus repulsive freaks of nature were there in force. A "kid" show across the way featured a human being, half man and half woman, take your choice.

Picking single acts in the big show for special mention would be a task up to a King Solomon. Among the acrobats and aerialists were the John Walters combination, the Morales from Mexico, all round tumblers, wire walkers and sensational stunt workers; Karl Larkin, the head balancing furniture mover, with his partner in juggling; Gene and Mary Enos and many other circus celebrities on the ground and in the air. The stuff was high grade and on par with more pretentious outfits.

The Joe Hodginis Troupe of European Equestrians featuring Joe as a riding comedian was the last work in bareback antics.

Trained horses, ponies, goats, pigs, dogs and elephants, but not forgetting the doves, were interspersed and delighted all who love animals.

Six or eight clowns did their stuff ensemble in front of the reserved section, or in walk rounds. The impersonater of a modern young woman who escorted bashful men along the hippodrome, created no end of amusement for the crowded reserved seat section.

Homer Truman of Norway, light heavy weight wrestler, was a favorite in the after show.

The circus has departed toward winter quarters, leaving behind a good taste, and a farewell message, "So long, good luck and come again".

CHAPTER XVI

A Concert

Maude and Betty seeing the necessity of getting for the quartette a good variety of musical supplies, concluded that it would be best to get up a concert and charge an admission. Of course Charley and Tom heartily approved of the proposition, as did Mr. Benton, as might be expected, but principally because the young ladies had suggested it. But as Mr. Benton was accustomed to do, he talked with Mr. Whiting and Justice Randolph about the matter as it ascertaining their views and assistance, and as usual to anything he proposed they gave their cordial assent and promised assistance to make the entertainment a success.

The four young people most concerned, however, got up the program and made all arrangements—Maude, in this matter being looked to as leader. The admission fee was put at thirty-five cents for adults and fifteen cents for children.

Tickets were placed on sale at Chase's drug store, a few days before the Friday evening on which the concert was to be held and on Wednesday evening preceding every seat had been taken, and it was found necessary to improvise additional seats to meet the demand.

The members of the quartette were in high spirits at the certainty of a full house and an appreciative audience, and the village magnate was seen on Friday afternoon near the post office, expressing his gratification to the village lawyer on the financial success of the entertainment. The real fact, however, was that "Cy" had done little towards it, except to buy two tickets—one for his wife and the other for himself, for Mr. Benton felt so good over the success that he wanted to express his gratification to someone and while in that mood Mr. Whiting happened along just in time to receive the benefit of Mr. Benton's exuberance of spirits.

Alderburg town hall was never more crowded than on the evening of the entertainment. Bob Morton, Jim Gordon, Victor Whiting and Bert Clark were the ushers and under Bob's leadership, the great crowd was seated without confusion.

There had been some disagreement between the members of the quartette and Clarence Sydney, the pianist. Imagining that his playing was much the most prominent part of the entertainment, he desired that the piano music should be the principal feature of about every selection, while Maude, backed up by the other three members of the quartette, insisted that the instrumental music should be quite subordinate to the singing, for they didn't want the finest tones of their voices drowned out in a great volume of sound from the piano.

At one time this diversity of opinion foreshadowed serious results, but Betty proposed that Sydney have the first selection on the program as a piano solo, for she was satisfied, she said to Maude, that Sydney would so overdue his part that he would get no encore from the audience, and that thereafter they would have no trouble from his playing, and this was assented to. Betty's scheme worked to perfection.

Sydney was delighted to have the first selection on the program and he meant to show an Alderburg audience that they had never heard such sounds as he could bring out of a piano and he accordingly spread himself, swaying back and forth from side to side of the keyboard, in unison with his hands and fingers. At times under the manipulations of his fingers the piano did fairly astonish the audience.

The small boys on the front seats—watching Sydney's performance at the end of six minutes or more, when the last sound died away and he had turned around towards the audience for the anticipated encore, which was not forthcoming, for they didn't care for another long period of affliction—felt such a gratification at its ending that they uttered an audible sigh of relief, whereat a general laugh followed. Sydney was astonished beyond measure and satisfied in his own mind that even hightoned Alderburg people lacked a proper appreciation of real instrumental music, concluded with what grace he could muster to conduct thereafter, his playing as the singers desired and their satisfaction at the success of Betty's ruse can well be imagined.

When the quartette appeared on the stage they were greeted with a general clapping of hands. They sang "Our Native Hills". This selection touched the pride and the hearts of the audience and the singers were loudly recalled. They responded with the first stanza of "Beautiful Highland Home". Again the singers were recalled and they sang the last stanza of this song.

The words and music of this splendid production were composed by Maude and Tom for the occasion. The elder Bentons were greatly affected for they knew the song referred to their own elegant home and it came to them as a great surprise as it was intended to be.

The next selection was "The Sweetest Song Ever Sung"—a duet by Charley and Betty, and for the encore they sang the last stanza of "Down by the Old Mill Stream."

The little drum corps, composed of Bob Morton, leader, Jim Gordon, Victor Whiting and Bert Clark gave an exhibition of their playing with the tenor drums. They were uproariously applauded—the youngsters in the audience making the loudest demonstrations of approval of the evening.

Miss Benton's solo, "Sing Me a Lullaby, Mother", with the other members of the quartette joining in the chorus, took the audience by storm. Of course they were recalled and then sang in the same manner, the last stanza of "My Lover is Over the Sea".

"Star of the Twilight" was thus rendered—first part of stanzas by Maude, the second parts by Charley and the chorus by the full quartette. They were

"Star of the Twilight" was thus rendered—first part of stanzas by Maude, the second parts by Charley and the chorus by the full quartette. They were loudly encored and "Do They Think of Me at Home?" was given in the same manner.

Tom and Maude, with their guitars, sang the college song: "A Quaker Sat in His Chamber Dim", and in response for the encore gave: "Put Me Off at Buffalo". The youngsters in the audience yelled themselves hoarse over this selection.

The surprise of the evening was the appearance on the stage of the little drummers in a new role, assisted by the little misses, Bessie Hadley, Alice Marian Weston, Mary Randolph and Katy Long. They had been secretly drilled for the occasion by Betty. They came on to the stage in pairs: Bob and Bessie, Jim and Alice Marian, Victor and Mary, and Bert and Katy. The boys filed off to the left in order and the girls to the right—the boys chanting the first line of a little melody thus:

"Oh we are a jolly set of fellows", and the girls chimed in with:

"Oh yes for they blow their own bellows". A great shout of laughter and applause from the younger element in the audience drowned out the words of the next two lines, when coming around again in order they marched off the stage in couples as they had appeared. A tremendous clapping of hands followed, at which the young performers reappeared bowed or courtesied, and retired as before.

There were several other selections, but the last on the program was "Don't You Remember?" by the quartette and responding to the encore, the last stanza of "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree", was sung. The last note of this beautiful song died away amid great applause and as the audience arose to leave the hall, many of the principal citizens were heard expressing their gratification at the great success of the entertainment.

Nowithstanding the lateness of the hour, Mr. and Mrs. Benton insisted that the singers should go home with them for a lunch. Mr. Benton was full of his praises and declared many times that he had never heard anything quite like it in all his life, and he hadn't even dreamed that such a fine concert could have been gotten up in this place and that too by his four children. He said that Betty was entitled to the greatest praise for drilling the eight young folks for the astonishing part they had taken in the entertainment.

After Charley had gone to take Betty and Tom home, Mr. Benton clasped his daughter to his heart saying: "Oh my girl, you were the mainspring of the whole performance. How splendidly you sing. I'm very proud of you."

"I'm so happy, father. I can't say more now," and she laid her head contentedly on his breast, while he gently stroked her hair as was his wont to show his tender affection for her.

There were many echoes to the congratulations that the principal citizens had showered upon the quartette. The Advertiser fairly outdid itself in its commendations and declared editorially that the entertainment must be repeated.

Charley was full of his praises of Betty. She was immensely pleased of course, but he was so extravagant, she felt like checking him up a bit. To his having said in one of his raptuous moods: "Oh Bet., you are a prodigy," she retorted:

"Oh tush, Charley. To think after we have lived so long in this little burg that you have just found it out. How much stock do you think I can take in your extravagant praises?"

"Don't dear, harp on that string any more. I'm awfully tired of it. There is no one who knows how to do things so well as my Betty."

"Just hold up there, Charley. I'm not yours yet, by considerable. I'm not quite certain that you won't be going wild and losing your head over someone else who happens to take your fancy.

"Oh Betty, you know better. If you didn't I'd forgive you. You have greatly improved since our school days and while you were away in Boston with your aunt, Alice, you have blossomed out to be the greatest beauty I know. Go look in the glass if you don't believe me. You warm hearted, dear, provoking, lovely Betty."

"Oh nonsense, Charley," (greatly pleased), "I look in the glass every day when I do up my hair and when I go out or expect company, and I don't see much of any change in my looks from my school days."

"Oh Betty, dear, but there is and you must know it. You will break my heart yet with your teasing."

"Well, well, Charley. Time will tell how constant you are."

Probably no two of the younger folks were more delighted with the parts they had taken than Mary and Victor. She praised him without stint for his fine drumming—declaring that none of the boys did so well and he was as profuse in his praises of her clear, sweet voice and charming ways.

Another echo—a little one—and the last to be here noted, was the talk between little Miss Weston and Jim.

Alice Marian: "You drummed splendidly at the concert and sang well, too, and I am proud of you as our teacher is."

Jim: "Many thanks, little beauty, but did Miss Gardner say that?"

Alice Marian: "Yes, she did, and she also said that you was a fine smart boy. And what Miss Cora Gardner says is so and everybody says that, too."

Jim: "Oh, I'm so glad, Alice Marian. She is a wonder for a teacher. I hope that she will always have that opinion of me. She will be the teacher I'll think the most of, but I'll tell you, Alice Marian, in confidence, that your good opinion of me is like the biggest hill we can see from this place."

Alice Marian: "Oh, but didn't we boys and girls do finely. Betty is splendid at training us. She can't be beat for that kind of an entertainment."

Jim: "That's just right. I never expected to have such good times when mother and I came here. I find lots here who are fine besides Tom. I think you and I shall stick to each other pretty closely in school and out."

Alice Marian: "I think we will, for you are so helpful when one like me is in need, and then we get our lessons so much better when we work together."

The demand for the concert to be repeated grew apace. This was taken as the greatest compliment that the quartette had received. Accordingly the entertainment was again given and to a full house as before.

With some variations—Clarence Sydney's solo was shortened and an addition made to the part taken by Betty's trained performers—the program was essentially the same as that of the first concert.

Some over two hundred and fifty dollars had been realized from both entertainments—a generous share went for the benefit of the drum corps.

New Laws

Explained by Warden Walker

Game Warden James Walker explains the new game laws enacted at a special session of the Maine legislature, Aug. 5-6. The laws go into effect Jan. 1, 1931, and the changes should be carefully noted.

Warden Walker emphasizes certain points as follows: "The new night hunting law prohibits hunting raccoon and skunk at night in the eight northern counties. In the eight southern counties the animals may be hunted lawfully at night from Oct. 1 to Dec. 15, if accompanied by a dog. No rifle larger than 22 calibre may be legally used. A 22 high power or a shot gun loaded with anything larger than No. 2 shot is prohibited. Nothing stronger than a kerosene light may be used. "Regarding the law for the protection of fur bearing animals Warden Walker explains that "the season in 1931 will open Nov. 16 and close Dec. 31 (closing under the present law is Jan. 31).

"In the eight northern counties there will be an open season on muskrats in 1931 from April 1 to April 30 inclusive, and from Nov. 1 to Nov. 30 inclusive. Open time in the eight southern counties is from March 20 to April 20 inclusive. "This law doesn't replace any private law pertaining to certain streams or brooks.

"Under the new law bears are classified as fur bearing animals and will be protected everywhere in the state, except in towns, where a bounty has been declared."

Warden Walker will soon have the new laws in pamphlet form for distribution. All prospective hunters and trappers should get in touch with him if there is any confusion in getting settled on the changes.

Note—This goes into effect Jan. 1, 1931.

Au Revoir Party

Folks, you can't beat Bill White of Boston, and Joe Donovan of New York, at giving parties. Bill, for instance, is a first class pusher and program announcer and Joe can ably attend to raking in the money at the door. The farewell party of the season was given Friday night, August 29, principally for the employee's of Bethel Inn, yet, several outsiders were invited.

The entire evening was devoted to dancing, except for a few specialty numbers, the outstanding ones were a clog dance by "Andy Gump" Gurney, which was greatly enjoyed and singing by the entire group. A lucky couple dance was given and the prize was won by Miss Agnes Ackroid of Haverhill, Mass., and her partner of the evening, Maynard White.

The music for the dancing was furnished by an electric Philco radio and phonograph combined, loaned by Jess Chapman, a prominent garage man of this town. Punch and fancy cookies were served at intermission by several young ladies. The hall decorations of green and pink were the same as the week before when Mrs. Philip Brown also managed a successful party. There were around thirty-five couples present and everyone had a lovely time. So here's to Bill and Joe, let's have another next year!

Back to the Fifties

Old Fashion Day at Paris Hill

Harking back eighty years into the famous "fifties" just for one day was the novel experience of Paris Hill residents and summer guests. The old fashioned gathering was staged along the village streets last Thursday. Many ancestral homes were open for public inspection; antiques and historical articles were assembled in the former academy building; the old stage coach functioned, and ye old choir sang as in grandfather's day. Attics and closets furnished abundant raiment for the characters to represent the social beings of that period.

The day opened with a pageant and costume parade, ending at the Baptist church, one of the ancient landmarks. Singers were grouped on the steps and a number of old familiar songs were sung under the direction of Mrs. L. C. Ashton. Mrs. Grace Collier was at the piano.

A dinner was served at the Paris Hill Country Club, then a number of houses intimately connected with the early inhabitants of Jackson's Hill (Paris Hill) were open to visitors. A small admission was charged for the privilege of this tour of inspection.

At the academy building, Percival J. Parris presided over an interesting exhibition of antiques and historical articles.

The old Concord coach owned and operated by B. W. Tuttle, collected passengers and made trips around the square. A circus named for the famous showman, Barnum, and other side attractions did a typical Cony Island business during the afternoon.

Throughout the maze of this ancient and honorable setting was a touch of modernism. Newsboys were crying the news about Hannibal Hamlin's nomination for governor and selling the extra edition of the Oxford Democrat, being volume 1, number 1, represented as printed Aug. 28, 1856. A variety of old and new subject matter was ably presented on its four pages. Moving picture cameras clicked while many "still" shots were taken. Auto horns tooted and the Norway-Paris band played modern music, not forgetting the popular Stein Song.

At 4 o'clock the pageant and singing was repeated on the church steps. Later supper was served in Cummings Hall. The crowd gathered for a high old time in the evening. Automobiles rolled in from adjoining towns and more distant points, until a record number of people gathered around the common where the old fashioned dances were staged on a canvas carpet.

Mellie Dunham and Mrs. Kate Hammond furnished music for the cosutme march led by Percival J. Parris and Charlotte F. Hammond, M. D. and contra dances. Elden Verrill was the prompter. After this program the canvas was open to public dancing with music by the Norway-Paris band.

The proceeds of the fair will be divided between Paris Hill Academy and the Paris Hill Country Club.

Jackson Reunion

Enjoyable Gathering Last Sunday at Stearns Hill, Paris

The annual reunion of the descendants or Lemuel Jackson and Jemima Sampson, whose son, Lemuel, 2nd, who married first Susan Hammond and later Tammy Tucker, and were the first settlers of Paris, Maine, was held on Sunday, Aug. 31, with Mrs. Addie Stone and son, Henry on Stearn's Hill, Paris. The day was ideal and the sightly farm with its many beautiful views of the surrounding country was a charming spot for the gathering.

The genial hostess and her musical son received their 80 guests under the shade of the stately oaks on their front lawn. There was a stream of cars lined out in the field like cattle show days, with late arrivals coming even after the picnic dinner. Long tables under the trees were laden with tempting good things contributed by each family present, and the hostess furnished fruit salad, coffee and ice cream.

After the dinner a business meeting was called to order by the president Solomon I. Jackson of Millettville, Norway. Minutes of the 1929 meeting held on Paris Hill were read by the secretary, Henry Stone, and the Register was circulated that all might be sure to sign up this year. Remarks were made by Thomas Jackson, who with his wife came from Creswell, Oregon, way across the states to attend, though he is nearly 86 years old. Charles Bixby, 85 years, who came by auto with his son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bixby of Wollaston, Mass., and daughter, Miss Mildred Bixby, of Lowell, Mass., and grandson, Wallace, gave a little talk, as did several of the younger members. Aunt Sebrina Jackson, who held honor of being the oldest member present, 87 years, read an original talk in rhyme that she had written off that morning, thinking that she might not be able to go, as follows:

Oh had I the wings of a crow,
I'd fly over river and valley,
And up to Stearns' Hill I would go.
There I would sit with the crowd
And listen to every word that was said,
As you kindly talk of the living
Or sadly speak of the dead.
Then you make plans for the future
Or speak of times long, long ago,
When our first ancestors, on horse-back,
Plodded over through rain and through snow
And with parsimony of comforts
No matter whatever betide.
Were as happy as we of today
Who in costly limousines ride!
As years roll or Reunions come
To be remembered and treasured, every one!
So whenever you meet
Think of me if you can,
As still remaining—
One of the Clan!

Mrs. Kate Jackson Hammond gave several character songs in negro costume, and also played the piano for the old songs and hymns while the entire company joined in. Madeline Emery and Henry Stone gave saxaphone and piano duets, and Mrs. S. I. Jackson's little granddaughter, Eleanor, five years, spoke a little piece about her dreams.

The youngest members present were the grand baby of Will Jackson and the grand baby of Mrs. Ambrose Swift, both babies being less than six months. The latter, Emery Taylor, Jr., is the fifth generation, his mother is Geraldine Taylor, grandfather is Gerald Swift and great grandfather, Ambrose Swift, and great, great grandmother, Mrs. Henry Berry, all living and four of them present.

The next reunion will be with Ambrose Swift and daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Richardson, with the following officers:

Pres.—Mrs. Addie Stone.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. Eva Jackson.
Secretary—Henry Stone.
Executive Committee—Mrs. Kate Hammond, Mrs. Jessie Andrews, Mrs. Lois Jackson, Mrs. Dora Stearns.

Political Matters

By R. L. Cummings of West Paris

While listening to our Republican campaign speeches last night I was forcibly reminded of what Bill Bicknell said, when he was fireman on the helper that used to push trains up over the Whitman Grade above West Paris. When the engineer told Bill to hook on, Bill asked: "How in thunder do you expect to make that grade without wood or water?"

Our principal speaker stated that he didn't propose to argue as argument did not make votes. So the force of the matter was simply an exortation to get out the votes to keep us in power, because a defeat, or winning by a small majority would be considered a rebuke to the administration in State and Nation.

My impression is, however, that if Yankees have an argument or a chance to make people believe they have one they usually present it in the most favorable light. He finally said that this was proper when you present a matter to any court. Whereupon he proceded to present us his argument for continuance of all Republicans in office.

There were two of them. First, that the campaign promise of President Hoover was to call a special session of Congress to enact a "Tariff" measure. I presume that a large part of that audience knew that that statement was far from the fact. The special session was for the fulfillment of his promise to call a special session to enact a measure for "Farm Relief". The actual fact is it now stands proven, is that it degenerated into a squabble by our great manufacturing industries to enact the highest tariff in our history.

Any schoolboy can understand that a high tariff on the manufactured goods the farmer buys, enables the manufacturer to demand a higher price for his goods. How can a tariff be a benefit to a farmer that produces goods of which we have a surplus that must be exported. It is also a fact that the one feature that would have helped the farmers to whom that campaign promise was made, was strongly opposed by President Hoover and the leaders of his administration, and by them defeated. This was the so-called "Debenture provision". That was simply a bounty placed on grain exported. This feature was supported by the National Grange and nearly all of the State Granges, but Mr. Hoover and his supporters defeated it.

His second argument was that Wallace White was the father or at least the cause and responsible for our American Merchant Marine. His statement that in 1916 only eight merchant ships were flying the American flag is an astonisher to men that have been near the salt water or the great lakes.

What then is the fact? About forty years ago J. P. Morgan & Co., the owners of the American Line purchased the Leyland Line. This line consisted of the ships Vancouver, Mongolian, Lancastrian, Devonian, Labrador, etc., did a large part of the export business from Portland and Montreal. Then this corporation being the second largest one in the world. Second only to the U. S. Steel Co. from the same source, purchased the White Star Line, The Dominion. The Red Star Line and the Hamburg American Line. These lines were capitalized in that manner so well known to our men of "high finance" and politics that I should be surprised if that speaker did not know of them. The White Star line was purchased at five times it original cost in cash and six times its cost in the stocks of the I. M. M. How rates for carrying our goods to market jumped. The average rate for carrying farm products in 1910 was $2.69 per ton. In 1912 $6.72, and in 1914, $14.00 per ton. From that time on there was no limit to their charges.

Some men, outsiders of course, paid as high as $200.00 per ton to have goods carried to England. The farmer was restricted in the price he could receive for grain, his wool and his milk. These great corporations, although the shipping board, appointed by the President, had full control of these rates, was allowed to charge whatever they saw fit. P. A. S. Franklin, the Vice President and General manager of the shipping trust itself, was a member of the shipping board.

What about the farmers of the west that grew hogs as well as grain? In the fall of 1914, when the war was on live hogs were selling for 11c per pound. I know because I raised 300 that year. The price in England advanced 40 per cent. while the price here was cut to 7c per pound. The rate for carrying to England in cold storage was advanced from $7.00 per ton to $50.00 per ton, but that was not the worst feature. When application was made for space to ship they were confronted with the information that Swift & Company had all space engaged. So the packers declared dividends of $25,000,000.00.

In 1919 The Cummings Esch bill, known as The Transportation act, was enacted, under the plea of turning the railroad back to private management that we might have lower rates and better service eventually. It also provided that these roads should be paid from the U. S. treasury a sum sufficient to make their dividends up to 5 1-2 to 6 per cent. until the Interstate Commerce Commission could institute rates that would return tha amount. The deficit while the Government was putting these roads in condition to operate more efficiently was about $30,000,000.00 per month. When safely back in those efficient management hands they put the deficit up to over $100,000,000.00 per month as stated by Senator Robert M. LaFollett.

The deplorable condition of agriculture throughout this country is a fact admitted by President Hoover and I have not heard it disputed by his most zealous supporters. Nevertheless when the farmers, after having gone through such experiences as I have mentioned ask for a little bounty on goods exported, they are denounced as socialistic and these gentlemen hold up their hands in holy horror that they should ask for "Aid from our government".

With these facts before us it is little wonder that our candidate for Congress does not look impressive when he comes before an audience with his hands in his pockets and simply begs for votes and declares that he will support President Hoover against these disloyal Republicans and terrible Democrats that as our speaker illustrated have bound and gagged him.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points on the tongue, starting during sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever.

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, 502 Asylum St., Flint, Mich., wrote: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and it was your Dr. True's Elixir that helped her."

UNDER the non-skid tread of these famous Firestone Tires is a double breaker of two plies of cord fabric anchored in cushion rubber. This special construction absorbs road shocks—protects against punctures and blowouts—provides the foundation for the thick, tough tread with deeper grooves—giving longer non-skid wear.

OTHER makes of tires have only a single breaker of old-fashioned square woven fabric which Firestone discarded when they developed the balloon tire. Some makes do not have any breaker at all. The Firestone Tire is set apart as an "All Cord Tire".

United Parish Kiwanis Boys' Camp

The boy who was not a member of the Saco Valley United Parish and Fryeburg-Lovell Kiwanis Boys' Camp this summer, missed an experience—of course he did! An experience of what? That's the story.

The week end was wet. Monday, August 18, was decidedly damp, but with blankets, tents, grub and optimism, the boys headed northwards to the end of the road to the old Carlton House, and here camp was made. It was wet, so nobody dared sleep on the ground and so the fellows bunked wherever they could. Some rolled up on the attic floor, right under a wasps' nest; the hay in the barn invited six or eight, and the rest—the fellows—slept on the beds in the house. But nobody sleeps the first night in camp, so what difference where they lay their blankets?

The old Carlton House, the "Hermitage", is on the Basin Brook, in the shadow of the Royces, Speckled and Blueberry Mountains. We came here to learn the hills, and so next morning we decided to find our mountain legs by climbing Speckled, an easy climb. Some were quitters, and some were weary, but all got to the top and did the vanishing trick with hot dogs, ham sandwiches and cucumbers. Coming down, the scouts in advance obeyed orders and followed the trail over Blueberry and down back of the old Stonehouse, but the middle group longed for home and took the shortest path, but missed the fun of a second round trip.

You ought to see our swimming hole. Not now, alas! By nature it was a couple of feet deep, but here and there and bushmen like Myron Gilman, Phil Hodsdon and Sherwood Bemis, with the help of all of the boys, dammed it up with sandbags and made a fine swimming hole. Here we swam. Before breakfast, Mr. Pavy never missed a morning, and some at night. Van Hodsdon, in the darkness, managed to swim into a mid-rib against a rock. All would have been well but for the heavy rains. The mountain torrents washed those sand bags and the water went back to the original depth. But Mr. Winchell gave us permission to use his fine hole on the Cold River and here we had lots of fun.

Have you had charge of a couple of dozen lads in camp on a wet day? On fine days we had volley ball, baseball, shot-put and such like, but Wednesday was wet—very wet. We'd have been miserable critters—we almost said "quitters"—if we had allowed a few drops of rain to spoil the camp. So we rigged up a pole in the barn and had great excitement with pillow-fighting. Then there was tilting from the top of barrels. But the game that saved the day was "duck on a rock" with tin cans and an old iron kettle.

Pages could be written on the trip up Mount Royce. Here was a real mountain. Archie Hurd knew the trails and the stories and the best swimming holes, and with him as a guide we had a wonderful trip. The sun was blazing, the blueberries were dead ripe and the water had a lovely nip, just the temperature for a hot day. If you have not climbed Royce, take a day off and do it.

Mt. Baldface was booked for Friday, but the lads were tired, and so we put it off till Saturday, making a trip to Kimball Pond for a swim in warm water instead. Alas for the plans of mice and men! The day opened with clouds over the mountain tops, and so we explored Shell Pond and wandered up the flume back of the Stone House instead. Of course we got wet, even before the rain, but we were soaked before we reached camp for supper. However, we should worry!

The camp was run on a self-governing basis, everybody working together and sharing responsibility. The senior boys were elected leaders of the four groups into which the camp was divided, and these groups got the meals and did camp duties. Of course we had camp fires. Big blazing piles around which we gathered at night for sing-songs, story telling and intimate talks together, always finishing with a goodnight prayer and the impressive "taps". We had a great talk from Mr. Jones, the superintendent of the Home for Little Wanderers, Boston, who told us of the experience of hundreds of less fortunate lads from the cities and country places of New England. If it was too wet for a fire outside, we crowded into the kitchen for singing and generally had lantern slides funny and serious. Each morning we assembled for study and the making plans for the day. Under the title "The Will of God and a Man's Life Work" we studied together what we were going to be in life and tried to find what was to be our own place in this great big world.

Sunday was our last day in camp. It seems the best day to finish. In a week you get to know each other as you never can back among the rest of the folk. Friendships are formed that often last through life. You want to be quiet and talk of personal matters. So on Sunday we got together a couple of times, and the closing campfire seemed different from the others.

In camp you instinctively judge one another. You can't help it. Some fellows had to fight twinges of homesickness. It was great to see a lad smothering any yellow streak and thought of quitting. And there were surprising revelations of boys getting under things and making the camp a success. On the last day the campers by vote chose the names for the Hall of Fame as follows:

Best All-Round Camper—Senior, James Merrill; Junior, Willis Guptill.
Most Respected Senior—Byron Bemis.
Most Respected Junior—Nelson Hall and Linwood Shaw.
Most Popular Boy—Byron Bemis.
Best All-Round Athlete—Phil Hodsdon.
Best Athlete, Land—Aimie Filion.
Best Athlete, Water—Phil Hodsdon.
Best Table Manners—Lawrence Binford, Ben Day, Byron Bemis.
Senior Who Did Most for Camp—Aimie Filion.
Junior Who Did Most for Camp—Myron Gilman.
Most Courteous Boy—Tom Sherbourne, Byron Bemis.
Neatest Boy—Willis Guptill.
Best Built Boy—Phil Hodsdon.
Favorite Game—Volley Ball.
Quietest Boy—Ben Day.
Camp Humorist—Gerard Groda.
Most Generous Boy—Eight boys received equal votes.
Favorite Trip—Mount Royce.
Most Improved Boy—Van Hodsdon.
Most Sportsmanlike Boy—Phil Hodsdon and Byron Bemis.
Strongest Boy—Phil Hodsdon.
Favorite Camp Activity—Playing the Organ; Swimming.
Best Singer—Linwood Shaw.

The following are the boys who attended the camp: Lovell, Tom Sherbourne, Edward Bell; Fryeburg, Wallace Jones, James Merrill, Francis Skillings; Fryeburg Harbor, Melvin Eastman, Sonny McKeen, Willis Guptill, Sherwood Bemis; North Fryeburg, Aimie Filion, Linwood Shaw, Lawrence Binford, Everett Forest, Byron Bemis; West Fryeburg, Ralph McKeen, Myron Gilman, Will Heath; Union Hill, Phil, Van and Irvin Hodsdon; Stow, Donald Eastman, Ben Day; South Chatham, Nelson Hall.

We were glad to welcome visitors who dropped in: Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Bosworth, Mr. and Mrs. Jones of Boston, the parents of many of the boys, and some members of the A. M. C.

The boys appreciate the kindness of Mrs. Etta Chandler for permission to use the old Carlton House; Archie Hurd for his expert help as guide; to Burt Webb, for help in transportation; to the storekeepers for reduced prices on the grub; and especially to the Fryeburg-Lovell Club, without whose financial help it would have been impossible for some of the boys to have had the week in camp.

United Parish Kiwanis Boys' Camp

The boy who was not a member of the Norway United Parish and Fryeburg-Lovell Kiwanis Boys' Camp this summer, missed an experience—of course he did! But experience of what? That's the story.

The week end was wet. Monday, August 18, was decidedly damp, but with buckets, tents, grub and optimism, the party headed northwards to the end of the road to the old Carlton House, and here camp was made. It was wet, so nobody tried to sleep on the ground and so the fellows packed wherever they could. Some were on the attic floor, right under the roof; most: the hay in the barn inside or eight, and the rest—lucky ones—slept on the beds in the house. Nobody slept the first night in camp, for the difference where they lay their heads.

The old Carlton House, the "Hermitage" on the Basin Brook, in the shadow of Mt. Royces, Speckled and Blueberry Mountains. We came here to learn to camp, and so next morning we decided to use our mountain legs by tackling Mt. Royce, an easy climb. Some got blisters, some were weary, but all got there and did the vanishing trick with the dogs, ham sandwiches and cucumbers. Coming down, the party in charge of orders and followed the trail to Blueberry and down back of Spruce house, but the middle group took for home and took the shorter trail, missed the fun of a splendid mountain.

We went to see our swimming hole! Alas, alas! By nature it was a couple of feet deep, but born campers like Myron Gilman, Phil Hall and Sherwood Bemis, with the help of the boys, dammed the brook with logs and made a fine swimming hole. Here we swam. Some before breakfast. Mr. Davy never missed a morning dip, some at night. Van Hoisdon, with boldness, managed to scrub his neighbor's back. All would have stayed but for the heavy rains. The mountain torrents worried those sandy banks, the water went back to the original bed. But Mr. Wardwell gave permission to use his fine hole on the Saco further and here we had lots of fun.

Who had charge of a couple of boys in camp on a wet day? On fine days we had volley ball, baseball, swimming and such like, but Wednesday was—very wet. We'd have been quitters—we almost said "quitters"—if we had allowed a few drops of rain to spoil the camp. So we rigged a table in the barn and had great excitement with pillow-fighting. Then races tilting from the top of barrels. Then the game that saved the day was "Hockey on a rock" with tin cans and an old iron kettle.

Many stories could be written on the trip up Mount Royce. Here was a real mountain. Archie Hurd knew the trails and the stories and the best swimming holes, and with him as a guide we had a wonderful trip. The sun was blazing, the blueberries were dead ripe and the water had a lovely nip, just the temperature for a hot day. If you have not climbed it yet, take a day off and do it.

Mr. Balsface was booked for Friday, but the lads were tired, and so we put it off till Saturday, making a trip to Kimball Pond for a swim in warm water instead. Alas for the plans of mice and men! The day opened with clouds over the mountain tops, and so we explored Small Pond and wandered up the flume back of the Stone House instead. Of course we got wet, even before the rain, but we were soaked before we reached camp for supper. However, we should worry!

The camp was run on a self-governing basis, everybody working together and sharing responsibility. The senior boys were elected leaders of the four groups into which the camp was divided, and these groups got the meals and did camp duties. Of course we had camp fires. Big blazing piles around which we gathered at night for sing-songs, story telling and intimate talks together, always finishing with a goodnight prayer and the impressive "taps". We had a great talk from Mr. Jones, the superintendent of the Home for Little Wanderers, Boston, who told us of the experience of hundreds of less fortunate lads from the cities and country places of New England. If it was too wet for a fire outside, we crowded into the kitchen for singing and generally had lantern slides funny and serious. Each morning we assembled for study and the making plans for the day. Under the title "The Will of God and a Man's Life Work" we studied together what we were going to be in life and tried to find what was to be our own place in this great big world.

Sunday was our last day in camp. It seems the best day to finish. In a week you get to know each other as you never can back among the rest of the folk. Friendships are formed that often last through life. You want to be quiet and talk of personal matters. So on Sunday we got together a couple of times, and the closing campfire seemed different from the others.

In camp you instinctively judge one another. You can't help it. Some fellows had to fight twinges of homesickness. It was great to see a lad smothering any yellow streak and thought of quitting. And there were surprising revelations of boys getting under things and making the camp a success. On the last day the campers by vote chose the names for the Hall of Fame as follows:

Best All-Round Camper—Senior, James Merrill; Junior, Willis Guptill.
Most Respected Senior—Byron Bemis.
Most Respected Junior—Nelson Hall and Linwood Shaw.
Most Popular Boy—Byron Bemis.
Best All-Round Athlete—Phil Hodsdon.

Most Improved Boy—Van Hodsdon.
Most Sportsmanlike Boy—Phil Hodsdon and Byron Bemis.
Strongest Boy—Phil Hodsdon.

The following are the boys who attended the camp: Lovell, Tom Sherbourne, Edward Bell; Fryeburg, Wallace Jones, James Merrill, Francis Skillings; Fryeburg Harbor, Melvin Eastman, Sonny McKeen, Willis Guptill, Sherwood Bemis; North Fryeburg, Aimie Filion, Linwood Shaw, Lawrence Binford, Everett Forest, Byron Bemis; West Fryeburg, Ralph McKeen, Myron Gilman, Will Heath; Union Hill, Phil, Van and Irvin Hodsdon; Stow, Donald Eastman, Ben Day; South Chatham, Nelson Hall.

We were glad to welcome visitors who dropped in: Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Bosworth, Mr. and Mrs. Jones of Boston, the parents of many of the boys, and some members of the A. M. C.

The boys appreciate the kindness of Mrs. Etta Chandler for permission to use the old Carlton House; Archie Hurd for his expert help as guide; to Burt Webb, for help in transportation; to the storekeepers for reduced prices on the grub; and especially to the Fryeburg-Lovell Club, without whose financial help it would have been impossible for some of the boys to have had the week in camp.

OXFORD—FORE STREET

Mrs. Mary Allen called on friends last week and lamented that no news from here had been in the Advertiser for two weeks and "why didn't I write?" Iva Allen Watson, her husband and son and Mr. and Mrs. William Foss were with Mrs. Allen. Iva said she just needed to take the Advertiser, it was missed so much if they did not. Both Mrs. Allen and Iva were looking well. Mrs. Allen is doing the housework for them, a family of seven, as Iva works in a factory, as well as Mr. Watson. They reside at Fayette.

Another reader of the Advertiser, Mark Smith, tells us he looks for Oxford Fore Street news as soon as he reads Norway locals. All this encourages the writer to keep at it. Mr. Smith is this way this time looking after the housing of furniture that has been stored in the "big white barn" lately sold by the Smiths to Al Twitchell. The furniture is being moved to the Wilson home, where there is plenty of room in the stable. Considerable is planned to be done to the camp, Green Dragon, inside and out, and about the outside on the landscape, making it a first class summer place. We are glad to welcome them among us.

The camp meeting Twitchells and Flora Cummings with her grandson, Arthur Cummings, of West Paris, attended West Baldwin camp meeting, Sunday, Aug. 31. They attended the Mechanic Falls meeting throughout, at Old Orchard a Sunday where Salvationists were holding meeting; Washington, Maine, August 25, Lakeside camp early in August, and Flora and Arthur attended the 7th Day camp meeting, held in Auburn, on the Pine Tree Academy grounds. All join in acclaiming it a very enjoyable season.

Mrs. Chestina Twitchell and Flora Cummings spent Friday afternoon in Norway, calling on their cousin, Mrs. Hester Walker, and other friends.

Arthur Cummings of West Paris, who has been the guest of his grandmother, Flora Cummings, for the past four weeks, has returned home. His school began September 2.

Labor Day, Judkins Cummings and family were supper guests of his mother, Flora Cummings.

Blackberries are dropping from laden bushes on the so-called Wilson lot. Bushels are being picked daily, yet there are places where no path has been made, that the bushes hang full of luscious fruit.

Sound of revelry, smell of roasted corn and toasted marshmallows fill the night air of an evening now and then but no account is given to us to write so we'll have to wait and see what's what same as to wonder why so much more than usual traffic over the cross roads East and West during the supposedly still hours of the night and early morning. We do not rouse up and look, but hear the disturbed dogs bark and note the whirr of auto and rattle of wagon.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Judkins of Milton, N. H., where Mr. Judkins is principal of high school, were guests last week of his aunt, Mrs. E. E. Twitchell.

ORDER DELAYED TEN YEARS

On August 29, the W. F. Tubbs Co. received a money order of $10 for a pair of snowshoes. The goods were sent by parcel post to the consignee in Prichard, Idaho. In due time a letter from the postmaster there informed the company that the goods were unclaimed for the person died nearly 11 years ago.

Inspecting the correspondence more carefully, the Tubbs office discovered the original order was made out in 1919. What held up the letter or money order for so many years is a mystery, being unravelled by the post office department.
